ANN'S AGE IMMATERIAL

Supreme Court So Decides Norfolk Case Involving Question of Mathematics.

THE LOCAL COURT AFFIRMED

Virginia Fire and Marine Company Was Liable Through Action of Agent-Summary.

The Supreme Court adjourned yesterday and opinions were handed down, several of which are particularly interest-

Judge Stafford G. Whittle handed down Fire and Marine Insurance Company vs. the Richmond Mica Company. The Cir-Court of Richmond is affirmed, cuit Court of Richmond is affirmed.

The summary showed that the policy or the Virginia Fire and Marine had the provise that the company should not be liable if the interest in the assured be other than unconditional and sole ownership, or if the subject of insurance be a building on ground not owned by the insured in fee simple. Plaintiff denied liability of the company on the ground that at the date of the policy interest in the property was not sole ownership and the ground on which the building stood was not owned in fee simple by the insured.

THE AGENT KNEW.

The court recites, however, that the sgent of the company, R. A. Lancaster, solicited the insurance from L. M. Willams, secretary and treasurer of the company, knowing all the circumstances of the partial sale of the property, which afterwards was destroyed by fire. The court held that the action of the agent estops the company from asserting its forfeiture. A number of authorities are cited to sustain the opinion of the court. The face of the policy was $1,500.

An interesting case came up from the Law and Chancery Court of Norfolk, in which Parlett, employe, sues Dunn. em. THE AGENT KNEW.

which Parlett, employe, sues Dunn, em-ployer, for injuries received while at work. The lower court is reversed on the ground that the risk was an ordi-NN'S AGE IMMATERIAL

ANN'S AGE IMMATERIAL.

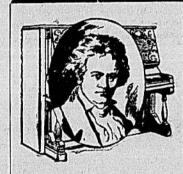

The age of Ann is not yet judically determined. The Supreme Court of Appeals has decided the case of Northington vs. the Nortolk Railway and Light Company without going into the disputed question of Ann's age, or youth. Whether the court's action was due to delicate consideration for the feelings of Ann does consideration for the feelings of Ann does not appear from the learned opinion handed down by Judge Whittle, sustaining the lower court, which set aside a verdict in favor of Anna Northington, plaintiff in the tass.

It seems that in the summer of 1901 Anna Northington fell, jumped or was thrown from a moving car of the defendant company at the corner of Church and Henry Streets, sustaining a broken.

this release she brought suit for damages, claiming that she was thrown from a moving car brough the negligence of the compuny. The case was tried and the jury gave a verdier for the plaintiff, which was set aside by the court on the ground that it was contrary to the law and evidence. A new trial was saked and granted.

asked and granted.

JURY WAS WAIVED.

At that trial plaintiff's counsel walved a jury and introduced no testimony. The court rendered judgment for the defendant, and on this judgment the case came before he appellate court for review. Judge Whittle summarizes the testimony at the former trial with clearness and conciseness. The defendant claimed that the accident was due to the negligence of the plaintiff, and introduced her release of the company from ilability, in which she admitted that the accident was due to her own act in stepping from a moving car. The testimony further shows that he plaintiff and her sister stated that the accident occurred on one side of the street, while high of the other two witnesses for the planiff is that it occurred on the other side of the street. The materiality of this contention is that if it occurred on the side where the defendant's witnesses and two of the plaintiff's witnesses and, the can was in motion and the plaintiff apparently stepped off after the car started.
Without going into the question of the age of the plaintiff at the time she executed the release of the company from liability, the court holds that the testimony does not sustain her contention that she was thrown from the car by the negligence of the plaintiff. The judgment of the lower court is without error and is affirmed. SUMMARY OF OPINIONS.

General Shipp is always ready to talk of the institute and its work. He said last night that no other school save West Point had so many alumni holding commissions in the United States army, They were put down in the army and navy registers as graduates of the Virginia Military Institute, and from the army officers and the naval commanders the same story comes—that they would rather have Virginia Military Institute men than any others save West Pointers.

General Shipp has a son in the army and now serving with his regiment in the Philippines. He is First Lieutenant Arthur M. Shipp, of the Twenty-eighth Inti-nity, who has arrived in the archipelago recently. The General had, is letter from Lieutenant Shipp, dated 28th announcing his arrival. The letter had just reached him a day or two ago.

Among the other well known Virginia boys and old Virginia Military Institute men now in the army in the Philippines are Captain Samuel D. Rockenbach, N. Cootes, of Staunton, and First Lieutenant Fitzhugh Lee, all of whom are in the Twelfth Cavairy, now on duty in Luzon.

HELP WOMEN'S HOME.

Hon. C. M. Wallace Offers Important Bill in House.

Hon. C. M. Wallace, Jr., of Richmond, yesterday introduced a bill in the House to create a State board for the care of to create a State board for the care of needy Confederate women. The object of the bill is to-afford assistance to the present Home for Needy Confederate Women. The Home is not owned by the State, and, therefore, cannot receive State appropriations. The object of the bill is to remove that difficulty and permit the Home to receive an appropriation from the State. Everybody seems to be very friendly to giving the Home such an appropriation, and as the bill relieves the difficulty, there is no opposition to it expected.

It has been referred to the Finance Committee, and will be considered at an early day.

They charge that a meeting of the board of supervisors, at which Chase City district was not repre out regard to the facts of the situation. Consequently they sent a delegation here to appeal to the State Board of Health to take charge of the situation, confident that an intelligent expert inquiry into the situation would develop the fact that the discrimination against that town was unwarranted and a hardship to its merchants and people. There is said to be no case of smallpox in the town of Chase City, and that in the country outside is exclusively confined to negroes. The following statement as to the situation there was made to a Times-Dispatch man by Mr. W. H. L. Nelms, of Chase City.
